

Cantica post lectiones ad Vigiliam Paschalem

Canticles after the readings at the Easter Vigil

LATIN TEXT VERSION

Alex Hodgkinson

This sequence is designed to offer a coherent sense of momentum and growth, emerging from the darkness of the first reading of the Vigil to the glorious light of the first Alleluia of Easter.

The canticles rise in pitch as the sequence progresses. The number of parts in the fauxbourdon verses increases from three to six. The verses are sung to Tones I, II, and V, in that order, as the incipits increase in range. The verses of the final canticle are set to Tone VII, followed by the Alleluia which uses Tone VIII for the verse.

The antiphons preceding the verses are simplified versions of the chant in the Graduale Romanum. Aspects of the chant are echoed in the fauxbourdon verses.
